Mormonism Propagated In Bourbon.

Two Mormon "elders," named Robnson and Walsh, are making a canvass of this section of Kentucky, trying to inculcate their damnable heresies into the minds of the unsuspecting and credr'ons of the more ignorant classes of white persors. Their oily tongues enable them to worm their way into the homes of the humbier citizens, and gain the ears of the women, and from such do they recruit the church of the "Latter Day Saints." The Mormons secretly advocate the doctrine of polygamy as a sacred duty, and for such display. have been expelled from various states. The movements of the above named "elders" are growing quite bold. They have but recently, to quote the Paris Reporter, "been holding services in the public school-house at North Middletown."
